PLAYGROUNDS FILLED WITH ENTHUSIASTIC YOUNG PEOPLE DAILY

GOOD RESULTS FROM ESTABLISHING TWO PLAYGROUNDS ARE ALREADY SEEN.

THOROUGHLY ENJOYED

Athletic Meets Between Rival Teams Brings Out Excellent Records by Young Athletes.

a hundred people were at the grounds to witness the events.

After four events the east side team led their rivals by a score of 808 1/2 points to the Webster school's 174 1/2. Only the standing and running jumps, chin-up and hundred yard relay race were scheduled yesterday and this afternoon the remaining events consisting of potato and relay race, race around the block, and volley ball game are to decide the winner.

The ten boys representing the Webster school were: R. Kinzie, G. Cassady, R. Navock, C. Navock, C. Dunwiddie, E. Litney, D. Dawson, E. Denning, W. Jacobson, and R. Ryan. Those from the Jefferson school were: M. Nowlan, R. Connell, E. O. Jenkins, R. O'Brien, E. Munger, C. S. Jackson, G. E. McDermott, C. Hoague, A. E. Pierson, and Dan Dodge.

The points of the race were distributed as follows: High Jump: Webster, 34.12; Jefferson, 35.5; broad jump, Webster, 9.1; Jefferson, 10.8.

Although the Jefferson school boys have a lead of over 134 points the Webster team expected to even up matters in this afternoon's events. The relay race and volley ball game afforded them an excellent chance to cut down the lead of their opponents as each event will count one hundred points. The interest that the supporters of the two playgrounds had in the outcome of the field met showed that they have entered into the events with the proper spirit and the directors are confident that with more practice and training they will develop to be experts in the various athletic events.

It is planned by the directors to give their charges instructions in swimming and every other morning or on dates agreed on beforehand, they will take all the boys of the city whose parents are willing they should go and give them lessons in swimming. The spot selected is at Goose Island where the river is very shallow and under the skillful care of either Finley or Law little danger is to be feared. The days set for the swimming lessons are Monday, Wed-

Jefferson school yard on the east side of the river and the Webster school on the west side, is evidenced by the enthusiasm displayed by those taking part in the various sports which are offered them. In fact, the grounds are used not only by the boys, but by the girls as well, and girls' teams in athletic contests are being organized.

The attendance has been most remarkable. The two directors of play, Mr. Finley and Mr. Law, have placed certain restrictions on the youngsters and they obey them. The rules are simple, but it has resulted in excellent discipline. Many of the boys have shown wonderful improvement in the few weeks the grounds have been opened.

One of the features of the playgrounds has been the inter-playground athletic contests which have been arranged for. The first took place Friday afternoon at the Webster school and is being finished this afternoon the contestants on each side, the Jefferson boys gained an early lead which they held and increased as the race progressed and when the last boy crossed the line he was nearly half a block ahead of the Webster school representatives. This race netted the east-side a total of one hundred points, placing them in a safe lead. In the chin-up the Webster boys totaled 43 points while their opponents capture 65.

In the first event the running high jump, C. E. McDermott cleared the bar at four feet two and one-half inches and won first place; R. Kinzie was second after clearing the bar at four feet. A. E. Pierson of the Jefferson school team was third and exhibited the best form in approaching the bar of any of the contestants. His best jump was three feet ten inches. All the contestants were able to clear the bar at a height of over three feet two inches and the com-

PROVIDE STATE AID TO RURAL TEACHERS

Teachers in First Grade Schools Entitled to Ten Dollars a Month According to New Law.

State aid for rural teachers is the latest plan evolved by the legislature for statewide distribution of treasury funds. According to the law which was passed and went into effect this week, rural teachers in schools of the first and second grade, classes which are defined in the law, are entitled to aid and a month respectively to be paid out of the state treasury. The teachers thus rewarded "must," however, have a certain preparation and a certain amount of experience, so that the law really is meant to be an encouragement to better preparation on the part of rural teachers. The law is as follows:

CHAPTER 636, LAWS OF 1913.
An act to create section 560-1 and subsection 1 of section 172-25 of the statutes, relating to state aid to rural schools, and making an appropriation therefor.

The people of the State of Wisconsin, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. There is added to the statutes a new section and a new subsection to read: Section 560-1. Every school district not containing wholly or in part of an incorporated village or city, nor containing a state graded school, which shall maintain a school or schools for nine months or more and have provided the minimum required by section 560-2 of the statutes, and which shall have an average daily attendance for said nine months of not less than twenty nor more than forty pupils, shall be deemed to have maintained a school of the first grade; and every school district which shall have maintained the first class school provided by section 560-2 of the statutes, for nine months, and shall have an average minimum daily attendance of not less than fifteen nor more than twenty, and a maximum daily attendance of not less than forty nor more than fifty pupils, shall be deemed to have maintained a school of the second grade. Any school district which desires rural school state aid as provided by this section shall make application in writing, as provided by section 560-3 of the statutes, to the county district superintendent, specifying in addition the average daily attendance and furnishing the name of the teacher and a copy of the certificate of authority of each teacher, the date and amount of her previous teaching experience.

2. If the county or district superintendent and the state rural school inspector, as the result of actual inspection of the school and the work of the teacher during the year for which aid is demanded shall approve of the application they shall endorse the same and remit it to the state superintendent of public instruction, who shall act upon the applications in the order of their receipt. Thereupon the state superintendent shall fix the amount to be paid each such rural school complying with the provisions of this section, whose application shall have been approved by the state superintendent, and certify the same to the secretary of state. The secretary of state shall then draw a warrant upon the state treasurer for the several claims of said rural schools made payable to the treasurer of the district or corporation maintaining such approved school, and such sums shall be apportioned to each teacher qualified as herein provided and employed in such rural school, as additional compensation as follows:

a. To each first grade school as designated herein and which has been taught by a graduate of the teachers course at the university of Wisconsin, a Wisconsin state normal school or other equivalent school as determined by the state board of examiners, or the holder of a life certificate, and who has had at least one year of successful teaching experience, and has taught an efficient school during the year for which aid is demanded, ten dollars per month for each such teacher.

b. To each second grade school as designated herein and which has been taught by a teacher holding a grade certificate and who has had at least one year's successful teaching experience, and has taught an efficient school during the year for which aid is demanded, five dollars per month for each such teacher.

The state superintendent is hereby empowered to refuse the additional state aid provided for herein, to any school district which in his judgment has failed to comply with the provisions of this section.

Section 172-25. 1. The whole amount annually paid under the provisions of section 560-1 shall not exceed twenty thousand dollars, and if more be demanded by said rural schools, it shall be paid proportionally. Any unexpended balance shall revert to the general fund.

Section 2. This act shall take effect upon passage and publication.

Approved July 21, 1913.

at the same school grounds. The rivalry is quite keen. Baseball is a hot art and the young athletes are really doing some remarkably good work.

Although only four events of a program of nine events were held yesterday at the first field meet of boys ranging from the ages of twelve to fourteen years, at the Webster grounds, the team representing the Jefferson grounds were able to score a decided lead on their opponents from the Webster grounds and bid fair to win the meet by an easy margin. Despite the age of the boys excellent records were made and both the directors expressed themselves as surprised at the boys' ability. Over

In the running broad jump the boys were well matched but the Webster school's star, R. Kinzie, was able to make a jump of twelve feet, winning him first place. G. Cassady, Webster, C. S. Jackson, G. R. Connell of the Jefferson team won first place in the chin-up event when he surprised the spectators by being able to touch his chin to the bar sixteen times. BUSINESS OFFICE OPEN SATURDAY EVENING.

WEATHER FORECAST
Rising temperatures with showers tonight or Sunday is forecast for Wisconsin. Sunday will be cooler.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.
It is gratifying to know that the aftermath of the bitterly contested city election discloses no scars on the surface, and that the defeated candidate and his campaign managers bow cheerfully to the will of the majority, and pledge loyalty to the city administration.

This is the spirit which makes for success, in any community, for the town and inland city are so close in these relations that the community nature of a big family, where harmony is necessary to peaceful existence.

The most significant feature of the Tuesday's election is the large vote which was polled, for it evidences a feeling of responsibility, when questions of great public interest are involved.

The weakness of many American voters is found in the fact that they do not appreciate the duty, as well as the great privilege, conferred by the ballot, and as a result many objections are permitted to go by default, and the men who were negligent spend their time in deploring results.

The vote was out last Tuesday and every last man who voted for the administration may thank himself for responding to the call of duty, for he was acting for a larger constituency, in which every home was represented, and if the same amount of interest was expressed in every city election there would be no cause to complain of our home government, and if the negligent voter would instead himself in public affairs the state would not long be cursed with such reform measures as the recall law.

But the war is over and we are now pledged to present a united front for a bigger and better Janesville, and why not?

It is an old saying that "The Lord helps the man who helps himself," and the truth of the statement applies as much to the community in which we live, as to the individual.

We frequently exhaust our energies in efforts to secure new industries, and if we succeeded in landing one now and then, the fact is liable to confront us, that we have drawn a blank in the lottery of experiment, for industries which are looking for a bonus are seldom worth moving.

The fact is too often overlooked in our midst are going concerns, under the management of men we know, and in which we have confidence, that would be going faster and stronger, with a little home encouragement. The Boosters' club could not engage in better work than to interest itself in this class of home industries.

These men are not asking a bonus. In fact they are not asking for anything. They are simply saving work and slowly developing a business which would make rapid strides if backed with more capital.

If the money which has gone out of the city during the past decade, and hopelessly lost in wild cat schemes, had been invested at home, the volume of our industrial business would have doubled, and dividend checks, rather than worthless certificates, would have been the reward. It pays to encourage home industries.

The life of a community is so closely interwoven that all of its interests are mutual. The church and the school are always in the vanguard and both are so common that they are not always appreciated. Janesville was founded by New England people, and the lapse of more than half a century has not entirely eradicated the characteristics of the forefathers. The city has maintained, to a degree, the personnel of its founders, and its schools and churches rank with the best in the state.

Two generations have come and gone and the make-up of the city today is purely of western type, yet much of the old New England spirit remains. We are not asked to tolerate the seven day and all night saloon, as is the case in some of our neighboring cities.

Our regulative laws are wholesome and while the rapid pace of the age is transforming the Sabbath into a holiday, our churches are still maintained and in a measure appreciated. The honesty which we inherited, as a people, is still untarnished, and the city has long enjoyed, and never more so than today, an enviable reputation for uprightness and integrity. Our business men are honest men, and failures are unknown.

More than that they are energetic men, and while the growth of the city may be slow, there is nothing slow about the men interested in its commercial life. The city is the trade center of the southern part of the state, and has no rival as a market.

Nature richly endowed the city, and in spite of the mistakes made in plotting it, the landscape today is like a panorama of which the eye never wearies.

The fact is sometimes overlooked, but it is worth remembering, and passing in your hat, that out of thirty-one hundred homes, twenty-six hundred people own the houses which they occupy. Is there any reason why these people should not have the best government, or the best of everything else, to be secured?

The commission plan of government has passed the experimental stage. It has proved a success wherever tried because it has everything to recommend it. The transformation from the old to the new always causes some jolts, as it did in our case, but we are rapidly adjusting ourselves to conditions, and inspired by the harmony spirit, to which we are now pledged, we ought to be the most happy and prosperous people on earth.

There isn't a father in the city, worthy of the name, who doesn't believe in good morals, and who would not do all in his power to prevent his son from becoming a profligate.

Every mother in the city prays that her children may go out into life bright in character and clean in heart. To aid in this important work, the standard of public morality is of vital importance, and while we may not all agree as to methods, we are all intensely interested in the outcome.

The government of our little city will be what we make it. The men who serve us in public office are there to do our bidding. They are open to counsel and advice, and are simply the officers of a great corporation, of which we are a part. Let us work together for our own and the public good, and be assured that our efforts will be crowned with success.

Side Lights On The Circus Business

By D. W. WATT

(Copyrighted.)

It was early after the Civil War that the big shows commenced to invade the southern country and although everything was in bad shape there the average person seemed to find enough money to go to the circus.

There was an old darkey woman who had heard many stories about the wonderful animals in the circus and of all these that seemed to her the most impossible was the camel. She was a very old lady and wore glasses and one of the first animals for her to run against in the menagerie was the camel. She walked around and around while he stood there and after she had seen him double hump and viewed him from all quarters and finally walking away from him and raising her hands and shouting she declared, "I don't care what anybody has told me. Dere ain't no such thing as a camel. Dere ain't no such thing as a camel. Dere ain't no such thing as a camel."

After a time she went on into the show and she saw the wonderful things there and came back through the menagerie and took another look at the camel she declared, "I must think he is suah enough a camel."

Not so long ago I had a letter from a man by the name of Ben Stone, who was with the Burr Robbins show for two or three seasons and for a time in the earlier days had owned a show and had many ups and downs in the business. Mr. Stone at one time was a good all around performer and for some years was considered a first class clown. But he would be so very busy that he would be retired from the business and wanted to know if I intended the banquet of the Showmen's League to be held in Chicago.

Only last week some business men of Chicago offered the officers of the Showmen's League a beautiful site on the banks of Rock river and $20,000 in cash if they would build the home in Beloit. And when anything looks good to the business men of Beloit they are always ready to make them a bid. This home will eventually be built in Beloit and it is in all probability it will be located in Chicago.

As Ben Stone spent many years of his life as a clown, know of no one who would be entitled to a better home than he, who has entertained the public and brought pleasure and laughter into many lives, for those of us who are third rate rather laugh many times than shed one tear.

In the early days of the wagon shows many hardships were encountered that would be almost impossible today. In '79 with the Burr Robbins show we were showing in Red Wing, Minnesota, about 22 miles south of St. Paul and St. Paul was the next stand and was the largest city that the Burr Robbins show had ever showed in up till that time. We got an early start out of Red Wing and I went on the last one out of town in the morning, as it was my business to stay back and settle the bills after everybody else had gone.

About two miles out of St. Paul I overtook Burr Robbins and his wife and just at that time Burr Robbins happened to think that he had left $2,500 in large bills tied up in a sack under the mattress in his room. He said to me, "I want you to turn around and go back to Red Wing as fast as you can and I'll go on into St. Paul and look after the show."

I turned around and drove back to Red Wing and when I pulled up in front of the hotel the ladies waited to know what was the matter and said to him that Mr. Robbins had forgotten a package of valuable papers and that would slip up to the room and just at that time Burr Robbins happened to think that he had left $2,500 in large bills tied up in a sack under the mattress in his room.

I found the $2,500 under the mattress and told the ladies that I had found the papers and busied back to St. Paul, hardly thinking of the three times that I had doubled the road and driven my team about sixty miles without feeling a bit tired. But the nature was constantly coming up in the days of the old wagon shows.

There was a little incident connected with Lou Williams, the back of man, of whom I spoke last week. I overlooked, Lou Williams had an old wooden chair at the back door where he was always to be found when the show was going on.

One afternoon a little, ragged urchin of about five years forgot himself and ran inside of the tent and Lou reached out and grabbed him and was holding him in his lap when Mr. Forepaugh came in and stepping up, spoke to Lou in a stern voice and said, "What are you doing with that boy?"

"Go on Governor, go on," this fellow was having the time of his life and he's taking nothing from you."

Mr. Forepaugh walked on and while there was nothing said it is fair to say that he thought more of Lou Williams, his back door man than ever. And this only goes to show that there is many a warm heart beating under the well worn clothes of the workingmen with the circus.

Many times after the show had gotten well under way in the afternoon there would be anywhere from a dozen to twenty boys out in front of the circus and do anything to see the circus and Mr. Forepaugh would go out and stand them in line and commence at the head and ask the first boy if he had any money. If he said "no" he would tell him to turn his pockets wrong side out and "Sny" time I have seen him with twenty of these boys in line with their pockets all turned wrong side out, marching them in to see the afternoon show.

There seemed to be a great deal of Lou Williams told him it took nothing from him. And it is fair to say that the little urchin that Lou Williams held on his knee all through the afternoon performance has not forgotten his first circus and how he came to see it.

News reached here yesterday to the effect that the Buffalo Bill show had been tied up in Denver on account of a big advertising bill of something like $66,000 which they owed to the printing company in Chicago. The receipts of the afternoon had been something like $6,000 which they turned over to the printing company and it was said that arrangements would be speedily made for the settlement of the balance owed the company. The show was to show in Colorado Springs the following day, but whether or not they got matters adjusted in time to make Colorado Springs is not known. But it is safe to say that a show like that would make some kind of a record and make their engagements for the balance of the season. It was said that during the extreme heat of the last three or four weeks that the show took over a million dollars for some time, and it is hoped that they will be able to adjust matters so as to finish out this season's work.

LOCAL FADDIST WELCOME: CUBIST HAIRCUT STYLES

Up-to-date Young Chaps Will be Eager to Try Out Newest Thing in Hair Trimming.

Cubist haircut for young men of fashion? Ye Gods! What next? First the cubists invaded the realms of civilized thought with their barbarian paintings, next the cubists began to design cubist gowns and garments for the women, and now the idea of those infernal cubists is to be used in helping along the facial characteristics of the men.

The cubist haircut, which consists of having the hair cut so as to show edges and corners instead of a round contour, is said to have invaded some of the larger cities, and may be expected to arrive in Janesville in a short while, although local barbers say they have not heard anything of it yet.

The style is proposed for high school and college boys and for young men of fashion.

JOHN PICKETT OF THIS CITY DRAWS BLANK MATRIMONIAL VENTURE.

MAIL ORDER MARRIAGE

"Sapphire Eyes" to Blame for the Whole Affair—Money and Wife Disappear in Dim Future.

When Eve lapped Adam with the apple in the Garden of Eden, Adam forgot all caution and ate of the fruit which was forbidden. Since then man has fallen victim to the wiles of women down through the pages of world's history. Anthony lost a world kingdom while under the influence of Cleopatra and fortunes have been lost, kingdoms battered for the smiles of a wanton.

Today's Chicago papers publish the same tale under a new guise, with a Janesville man, John Pickett, as the victim, and a scheming clever woman as the siren that lured away his money as the siren that lured away his money, and then disappeared, fitting to the westland, while the impatient bridegroom waited in a downtown Chicago hotel.

Mr. Pickett told his story to a Chicago newspaper reporter. Pickett is well known in Janesville, the son of the late William A. Pickett. For many years he conducted a grocery store on South Main street, where the Winslow store is now, in the Fredenall block. Later he took over the management of his father's farm in Johnston, living with his mother and sister at 1002 Ruger avenue.

Police at Sea.
The Chicago police are searching for the woman who married John Pickett, who induced him to part with his money and wife, and then fled to parts unknown. They believe she is a much married female and are aided in their belief by the numerous letters which have been received from her.

Pickett has suffered more or less financially from her wiles and now demand that Pickett make good their losses. The following is the extract from today's Record Herald, which tells the story as related in Chicago:

"Pickett, himself, telling the story Thursday in the presence of his mother and sister, who had come with him as a protection against the spurs of a big bluff, admitted that he had not established a record in worldly wisdom."

Gets Bride Through "Ad."
"He had read an advertisement in a Toledo matrimonial paper and answered the appeal of a lonely and wealthy widow," finally meeting her in Chicago, the trusting place being the corridor outside the marriage license window. A boastful man, he lured her into a room where he had established a record in worldly wisdom."

"Nellie Elizabeth Robertson, 37 years old, Chicago, no. 30, 117, 73, had a fair complexion, blue eyes, light brown hair, changing between deep gold and brownest chestnut, and eyes of sapphire blue, large and with long, straight, wavy hair, weighing 150 pounds, with a figure that would have driven a Greek sculptor mad with delight; dresses like a queen of fashion."

"Justice of the Peace Polk, in the Record Block, married them. Afterward Mr. Pickett suggested they depart for Ellysium, otherwise known as Janesville."

Needless Away $540.
"Oh, John, dear," panted the bride, "you know sister is terribly sick. You get the home ready and I'll come to you."

"John, being 40, went home. She came to see him—once—and wanted him to get an automobile to save himself long walks to the train. 'Trustful' Mr. Pickett met her at the Windsor Clinton Hotel June 4."

"You see, I've a judgment against the City Railway Company for $350 for the death of my husband. I won't prosecute it unless I pay him $500 fee. I really need a new gown, too, dear."

"She looked at him again, and thereupon went John's $500. Together with $40 for the dress. The sick sister again interfered to keep him up town while his bride care for her, but next day he was to meet her."

"At the address his dream faded at the sight of an empty basement flat. Its former occupants a Mr. Wagley, a sick woman and baby and a second Mrs. Wagley, had fled. Detective Harry Powers found she and the others had bought tickets for Walla Walla, Washington, but they haven't arrived there yet."

"Mr. Powers also learned from old letters and other sources that Nellie Elizabeth absent-mindedly had dallied with the affections of other trusting men. Visions of other marriage ceremonies are before the detective as they scan the letters Mr. Pickett is receiving."

"I guess I'll go back to Janesville," said Mr. Pickett, when he learned that his wife's marriage was a long and tedious process."

"The police can't determine whether to seek Nellie on a warrant charging a confidence game or one for bigamy."

JANESVILLE MAN IN AN AUTO ACCIDENT

Car Belonging to Rockford Man Goes Into a Ditch at Beloit, Injuring Passengers.

According to a Beloit paper, Stanley Brown of this city, was one of the passengers in a big seven passenger automobile, that went into a ditch, pitching down a five foot embankment at the east end of Broad street Thursday night and aside from damaging the car to the extent of smashing the top and breaking an axle, injured the occupants more or less. Aside from Mr. Hamilton, Miss Mae Condon and Mary Smith of Rockford were in the car. Miss Condon was cut about the face and the other occupants received a severe shaking to the extent of being bruised. NEW LAW INCREASES WORK OF FIRE CHIEF

H. C. Klein Receives Copy of Measure Now in Effect Which Adds Much to Present Duties.

Fire Chief H. C. Klein has received a copy of a law which has just been passed by the state legislature and which is now in effect, which will add materially to his duties. According to the terms of the measure the heads of fire departments in cities of the first, second and third class are deputy fire marshals and are required to make inspections once every six months in all the territory served by the department and once in three months in the district designated as within the fire limits. Written reports of the inspection must be sent to the state fire marshal.

Another regulation has been made which will mean additional work for the fire chief. It requires that every fire insurance policy shall have attached a clause which shall be filled out by the chief in case of fire causing damage to the property covered by the policy. This blank duly filled out must be sent to the state fire marshal.

"It means that all this inspection work must virtually be done by the chief of the department," said Mr. Klein, in commenting on the law. "It means that the chief of the fire department is required, by himself or by officers or members of his fire department designated by him for that purpose, to inspect all buildings, premises and public thoroughfares, except the interiors of private dwellings, for the purpose of ascertaining and causing to be corrected any conditions liable to cause fire, or any violations of any law or ordinance relating to the fire hazard or to the prevention of fires."

(c) Such inspection shall be made at least once in six months in all the territory served by such fire department, and not less than once in three months in such territory as the common council shall have designated as within the fire limits of the district subject to fire, and often as the chief of the fire department may order. Each six months' period shall begin on the first days of January and July, and each three months' period on the first days of January, April, July and October, of each year.

(d) The chiefs of fire departments in every city of the first, second and third classes shall designate a sufficient number of men as inspectors to carry out the provisions of this act.

(e) Written reports of inspection shall be made and kept on file in the office of the chief of the fire department in the manner and form required by the state fire marshal.

(f) Such inspection shall be subject to the supervision and direction of the state fire marshal, who shall upon examination by his department certify to the commissioner of insurance after the expiration of each calendar year each such city, village or town where the inspections for such year have been made, and records thereof have been made and kept on file as required by law.

(g) A copy of any report showing a change in the hazard from the survey, or any violation of law or ordinance relating to the fire hazard upon which such inspection shall be given by the state fire marshal to the inspection bureau making written request of him therefor.

5. The occupant and owner of any premises upon which any fire has occurred shall immediately give written notice thereof, specifying the time, place, amount of damage, and cause so far as known, to the chief of the fire department when the property is located where there is a fire department, or if there be none, then to the state fire marshal at Madison, Wisconsin. Such notice may be sent by mail. No proof of loss under any policy of insurance shall be given until such notice has been given or in behalf of such occupant or owner, and a notice given by one shall be sufficient for both the owner and occupant. A form for such notice approved by the state fire marshal, reciting this subsection, shall be attached to every policy of fire insurance issued in this state.

Section 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication.

FORMER ROCK COUNTY MAN IN BANKRUPTCY

F. M. (Borax) Smith Faces Petition Of Creditors in California Court.

According to San Francisco dispatches, F. M. (Borax) Smith, who formerly lived in Rock county and whose brothers conducted a business in Janesville many years ago, a multi-millionaire manufacturer and promoter, must appear before Judge Morrow in the United States District court on Aug. 5, to show cause why he should not be adjudged a bankrupt. The date was set today in answer to the petition in involuntary bankruptcy filed yesterday by Leo D. Dickey, C. E. Gilman, Albert Hanford, and the Union Land Company, who allege in indebtedness aggregating approximately $150,000.

Smith's affairs are in the hands of a board of trustees, including some of the most influential business men in California, who had undertaken to straighten out the tangle of obligations in which he had involved himself, without forcing him into the hands of a receiver.

In a statement issued last night the trustees indicated their purpose to attempt to show Smith solvent and continue the present arrangement, which they said had proved satisfactory to all the heavy creditors.

STORES WILL CLOSE FOR GROCERS' PICNIC

Majority of Local Merchants to Shut Down at Noon on Day of Big Celebration—Many Interesting Features.

With the possible exception of a few stores, the local merchants will close up their establishments on next Wednesday, because of the Grocers and Butchers' picnic, which will take place at Yost Park.

Many interesting features are being planned for on that day by the grocers and butchers' associations, composed of E. C. Baumann, William Taylor, Frank Joyce, Will Conroy, Millie Roessling and E. R. Winslow. Special cars will run over the interurban line to the scene of the picnic, almost all of the time. It is expected that a huge crowd will attend this picnic, which is a large annual event.

A parade will take place here in the morning at 8:15. An interesting feature at the park in the morning is the ball game, between the Grocers and Butchers' clerks, versus the professionals.

The afternoon will be the scene of a hotly contested ball game, between the Janesville Cardinals and the Beloit Moose nine. This game will take place at 3:30. During the day $250 worth of prizes will be given away. For the benefit of those interested in viewing the prizes, Taylor Bros. window will be donated with them tomorrow.

A Modified Dutch Colonial—By John Henry Newson

Home of Character No. 218

In this design the porch has been extended out to one side with an open pergola on the extension portion. The general effect of the Dutch colonial is, however, preserved. The chimney is exposed on one side of the house, and viewed from that side the house presents the appearance of being exceedingly wide because of the extension porch.

The first floor is of the center hall type and provides for a large living room on one side with an open fireplace. The dining room, pantry and kitchen are on the other side of the hall. The drawings call for hardwood floors and finish throughout on this floor, while the kitchen, ice room and pantry are finished in Georgia pine. The stairs going up from the main hall are finished the same as the hall, in hardwood, either oak or birch, while the grade landing stairs off of the kitchen are in pine, the same as the kitchen finish. The stairs going to the basement are open plank stairs. The second floor having four large bedrooms, each with a closet under the roof, can be finished to suit the desire of the purchaser, but hardwood floors are provided on the drawings, as well as in the bathroom, which is over the vestibule.

The side walls of the house are covered with wide lap siding in preference to any other material, and the roof is covered with black slate.

The design (32x28 feet) should be built for about $4000 in most localities.

YESTERDAY'S symposium on the question whether it is right to limit one's offspring to the number one can bring up, and educate promptly, has spilled over into today.

Two families, Mr. and Mrs. A., who did not do this, and Mr. and Mrs. B., who did, as described by a letter friend, are the subject of the discussion.

Below are two extremely well put arguments on this matter, both, by the way, written by men:

"The cases you cite are not typical, they are abnormal and extreme." "It is not the best of one side for comparison."

hash. All other thinned meats should be forewarned. Better far depend upon the day's hunt or catch than to live from a tin can.

Beans and peas, in the form of a chowder, plain, stewed or baked, are excellent meat substitutes. Canned fish may be used in emergencies, providing the tins are unexpired, and the fish is of good quality.

Washed paper is the best brands obtainable are secured and the weather cool. Dried and smoked are preferable and can be used to better advantage.

Camp is no place for the ready-to-eat, "predigested" cereal. In the open, boys with moderate appetites become ravenously hungry and the food that counts are the ones that "stick to the ribs."

Old-fashioned Irish oatmeal, home-ground cornmeal and whole wheat meal preparations make the best cereals imaginable that will stand by a morning of activity.

Make Your Own Bread. The whole wheat meal and cornmeal can be used for hot breads, affording a welcome change from the ordinary "white" kind, and having far greater food value. This is a most excellent wheat meal which makes the bread and excellent for breakfast also.

If camp is prolonged it behooves the camper to make his own bread, unless there is an obliging country woman nearby who will part with some of her "baking," but better still, to bake from your whole wheat flour.

The whole wheat meal and cornmeal can be used for hot breads, affording a welcome change from the ordinary "white" kind, and having far greater food value. This is a most excellent wheat meal which makes the bread and excellent for breakfast also.

If camp is prolonged it behooves the camper to make his own bread, unless there is an obliging country woman nearby who will part with some of her "baking," but better still, to bake from your whole wheat flour.

THREE-PIECE SUIT OF BROCADED CREPE

GIRL SUFFERED TERRIBLY

At Regular Intervals—Says Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured her.

Adrian, Texas.—"I take pleasure in adding my testimonial to the great list and hope that it will be of interest to suffering women. For four years I suffered untold agonies at regular intervals. Such pains and cramps, severe chills and sickness at stomach, then finally hemorrhages until I would be nearly blind. I had five doctors and none of them could do more than relieve me for a time.

"I saw your advertisement in a paper and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took seven boxes of it and used two bottles of the Sanative Wash, and I am completely cured of my trouble. When I began taking the Compound I only weighed ninety-six pounds and now I weigh one hundred and twenty-six pounds. If anyone wishes to address me in person I will cheerfully answer all letters, as I cannot speak too highly of the Pinkham remedies."—Miss JESSIE MARSH, Adrian, Texas.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy.

PERRY CELEBRATION SIGNIFICANT EVENT

CHURCH SERVICES WILL MARK
OBSERVANCE OF FAMOUS VICTORY IN MILWAUKEE.

HISTORICAL INTEREST

Wisconsin Posts Were Among Last
in United States to Witness
Final Lowering of British Flag.

(By Ellis B. Usher.)
Milwaukee, July 26.—One week from tomorrow the Perry celebration will begin with a general religious observance of the event in all the Milwaukee churches. This part of the program should be initiated in every patriotic pulpit in the state, for the Perry centennial celebration is not only a memorial of the momentous victory over the British by Perry's little fleet at Put-In-Bay, but it is also a reminder that the close of the War of 1812, which marks 100 years of peace between the United States and Great Britain, is also at hand. It was Perry's victory that gave the Great Lakes to the United States as a northern boundary and included Lake Michigan within our domestic borders. It is also worthy of remembrance that one of the last spots on the soil of the United States, to witness the final lowering of the British flag, was Prairie du Chien.

Significant Wisconsin.
The British troops, owing to the remoteness of this fur trading outpost from communication with the seaboard, did not receive their orders to withdraw until May 1815, several months after peace had been signed and on the 26th of that month Col. John Crook, the British commandant, hauled down his flag and proceeded east by way of the Wisconsin and Fox rivers and Green Bay to Mackinac, which was the last place a strike of British colors was seen on the continent. These are suggestions of the historical importance of the Perry victory to Wisconsin, which had, since 1815 been more of a French and British fur trading province than an actual part of Northwest Territory. It was not only preserved to the United States by Perry but it was made possible by the great great navigable water front of 1000 miles, on Lakes Michigan and Superior, and the rivers along its boundaries. Wisconsin owes much to the fortunate outcome of our last war with England.

In Progressive Maine.
When I was in Portland, Maine, recently, my attention was called to a new development in municipal undertakings which suggested that this little city had been a pioneer in progressive "pebble on the beach" much as we hear of it, especially at home. A native and former resident of Portland has given to the city, for its beautiful harbor, city hall, and ancient pipe organ, a sum of $100,000. I am unable to state the money value of the gift but it ran up high in the thousands, and the instrument is of such quality that an accomplished organist who has made $5,000 or more in New York city, gave up his place there to accept a smaller stipend as municipal organist of Portland. Portland has, for generations, been a very musical city, and while it is a community in the state having the largest proportion of native blood in it to be found in New England and one where Germans have seldom settled, it was very interesting to learn that the Yankee whose generously reared this monument, Mr. Currier, of the Ladies Home Journal, dedicated it to Kolschman, the German musician and teacher, who died a few years ago, and to whose instruction two or three generations of Portland musicians had been under obligations for their high standing in the musical circles of the east. It was interesting to learn that some of the fathers at home who taught the sons of the Puritans know a good and talented Deutscher when they see him, just as well as anybody. The musicians of Portland are taking great interest in the musical organ and all are contributing to make it an inspiration to musical culture worthy of its namesake.

Thrifty Mr. Bryan.
Mr. Bryan is a thrifty soul and his lecturing tour has given the fact of his public blessing if the boys he has had should discourage a lot of other statesmen nearer home from land. The moral side of it has not seemed to occur to the Chautauquians, until the Progressives have begun to stick pins into one another over Bryan's peripatetic. But it is time for Mr. Bryan and other censors to learn that a thrifty soul who lectures for a living, should need no "wage" at all. A number of quite substantial fortunes have thus been acquired by men who not only used time they were under contract to use for the public, but by exploiting themselves and their utterances on the strength of their public position. It will be quite an epoch in moral uplift if they can be brought to see themselves as others see them. While it may be possible that they all really do best service when they give their public jobs absent treatment, it is quite a step ahead for them to be brought face to face with the public on the proposition.

The Erie and the Strike.
(An Advertisement.)
It is proper for this paragraph to be at the outset, that it had no official suggestion or authorization. In fact, it is a mere gossiping as in other parts of this letter, but as I am using the Erie's name, and as it is a part of my business to exploit that road, this is in strict compliance with law, as paid paragraph. On the 21st President Underwood announced to the mediators of the strike situation that the Erie, which had previously held aloof, would "accept any award made under the Newlands act," that it would "ask employees to defer the effective date of January 1, 1915," should the award be an increase of wages. This means, as I suggested last week, that the Erie's are for financing its improvements are, necessarily, made, and that they leave no latitude for an increase of wages. The progress that has been made and is now making, toward putting the Erie at the front as a freight carrier, cannot be overestimated unless the general strike is turned in the east, should tie up all the roads. In the present financial situation that would seem unlikely.

Copper Miners Strike.
That a strike among the copper miners of the Upper Peninsula should take place, now, when prices are down is, like the threat of a railroad strike, anything but reassuring to business men. I find in the annual Report of our Government, the following quotation from an officer of the Royal Bank of Montreal:

London's attitude toward Canadian copper securities has been unfavorable for some time past, which is no doubt due primarily to the Balkan war, and secondly, to the large borrowings of our municipalities. A number of Canadian cities, among them Montreal, failed in attempts to place municipal loans on a par cent basis during the past year and have been obtaining money on short time notes from local banks at a considerably higher rate of interest. While the outlook in Canada is exceedingly bright, there are evidences on many sides that we are sustaining our prosperity. There is too much inflation. It would be the part of prudence to retrench in our expenditures until we have harvested another crop.

This escapes the suspicion so many people have that our own bankers are combining to scare the Wilson administration. Another Consular Report from Birmingham, England, quotes an English trade paper, the Ironmonger, as saying: "A wholesale readjustment of prices will clear the way for a revival of trade so soon as the financial and political conditions of the world are more favorable for the expansion of industries." It is necessary to say that neither of these expressions were intended to influence politics and business in the United States but they bear out the idea that neither business nor finance are running any too smoothly anywhere, just now.

Poor Bond Market.
Getting closer home the Wall Street Journal says that $80,000,000 of state and municipal bonds have failed to sell so far this year, although some have been disposed of at subsequent offerings. The same paper quotes a member of the industry just back from Europe as saying:

"Times are so good that we have lost the art of doing things inexpensively any more in this country. The Pennsylvania Railroad builds a station and $5,000,000 per annum represents the interest at 5 per cent on the expenditure. Then the New York Central follows suit, and yet is hard to see how this enormous outpouring of money can bring a single passenger more to either road's ticket window."

There's a bit of wisdom, worth pondering, in that statement, and if we limit even to good things and if we limit on pressing it all the time, we will find it.

Short Notes.
In Romeo, Michigan, where he had retired to a farm, John D. McLeod, died the other day. He was well known in Wisconsin for many years as the general manager and later as the Vice President of the Wisconsin Telephone Company from which position he retired on a good pension. He was a very capable and interesting man, and a warm-hearted friend, who will be kindly remembered by many people. He had usual that served to entertain him in leisure hours. His hands were very deft, and he did woodcarving, and modeling in plaster, without instruction, that was quite above the work of the ordinary amateur.

Milwaukee will soon inaugurate a new and comprehensive sewerage system that will ultimately involve an expenditure of $13,000,000.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

THE KIMONO.
(By Howard L. Ramm.)

THE kimono is a long, loose-fitting garment, which is a cross between a cotton flannel nightgown and a six-bushel gunny sack, and when draped upon the physique of a short woman weighing 130 pounds, it can hardly be told from an Empire gown.

The kimono does not conceal a woman's stays or whalebone attachments, but it falls in graceful, flowing lines until it is stopped by the floor. It is in high favor with husbands because it does not have to be hooked up in the back. Some day somebody will invent a kimono with fastenings at the ends, and down its spinal column, and then divorces will be more common than they are at present.

The kimono is used extensively in Japan, where it was first tried out as a substitute for clothes. It attained immediate and widespread popularity, owing to the fact that a woman whose washing had not come home could borrow one of her neighbors' kimonos without having to let it out or clean it in. The kimono has no neck to speak of, and will fit anything from a snakehead to a man's head.

Kimonos are usually made of some non-scrubbable material which is not good for anything else except to paper the hall bed room. It comes in figured patterns, ranging from the soporific sunflower to the blood-sweating hemlock of holy writ, and runs to gay colors which after one washing lose considerable of their identity. A very nice kimono can be made from eight yards of crepe or other material, brodered in yellow and pink lilac of the valley. When a near-sighted husband who has sworn off drinking comes home at night and sees his wife standing coyly under a gas jet, attired in one of these kimonos, he will perform a relay of agile fits in the front hall.

If it were not for the sleeves of the kimono, it could be built out of one bolt of cloth. A woman who wears a kimono for the first time has more trouble keeping the sleeves out of the soup than she does in matching the hair at the hair department store. But for solid comfort, the kimono makes all other garments feel like a straight-front.

The heat that makes us gasp and shiver, and hand out comments on civil keels and warm beams alive, around in sweat and yellow clothes, getting that the Hubbard squashes need heat to make them thrive. We all wear up and rant together, and the pink-blacked, ding-donged weather and snow around us looms, and yet this heat, which seldom varies, is helpful to the huckleberries and also to the prunes. In arctic climates sun rays don't sizzle, so agriculture is a fizzle, and wheat culture is a fizzle.

CONSOLATION lives with the sun were blazing, for they are tired of always raising cheap beer and sweat. Then let us, while profuse sweating, be in danger of forgetting what's needed by the peas, the egg plant, and the blue of amber, the onion and the proud cucumber, and other things, besides, after a while, not unlike these, after a while, not unlike whipping duffer—it's foolishness to chafe, just face the issue bravely, stoutly, and dance and sing and save devoutly "Thank God, the prince crop's safe!"

"THE GIRL AND THE TRAMP."
The Girl and the Tramp will be offered at the Myers theatre Sunday, July 27, matinee and evening. This popular comedy is now in its third season and is cited by both press and public as being the very best of its kind extant.

A complete scenic production is carried and popular summer prices will prevail. High class vaudeville will be offered between acts.

FACE BROKE OUT IN LITTLE PIMPLES
Red and Sore. Like Little Boils. Would Wake Up At Night and Scratch. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured in Three Weeks.

Falls City, Neb.—"My trouble began when I was about sixteen. My face broke out in little pimples at first. They were red and sore and then became like little boils. I picked at my face continually and it made my face red and sore looking and then I would wake up at night and scratch it. It was a source of continual annoyance to me, as my face was always red and spotted and burned all the time."

"I tried _____ and others, but I could find nothing to cure it. I had been troubled about two years before I found Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and tried them and I then bought some. I washed my face good with the Cuticura Soap and hot water at night and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. In the morning I washed it off with the Cuticura Soap and hot water. In two days I noticed a decided improvement, while in three weeks the cure was complete." (Signed) Judd Knowles, Jan. 10, 1913.

It costs nothing to learn how pure, sweet, effective and satisfying Cuticura Soap and Ointment are in the treatment of poor complexioned red, rough hands, itching scalps, chandruff, dry, thin and falling hair, because you need not buy them until you try them. Although sold everywhere, sample of each will be mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

"Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp."

(Register Gazette.)

With a view to reducing the death rate among children the Rockford visiting nurses, Mrs. Margaret Chatterton and the Misses Violet Jensen and Anna Peterson are conducting summer schools for mothers for instruction in the care of babies Tuesday afternoons during the hot weather at the city hall. The first of these was held last Tuesday and it was well attended.

The nurses are putting in their leisure time preparing a map with reference to the health of little ones so far as the city is concerned. The map is a feature of the infant welfare department of the Visiting Nurses association.

The birth and death record for the year 1911 are being secured and data concerning nationality, residence, sex and other details are being gathered. The heaviest and why, and other important data. With these facts at hand the nurses expect to inaugurate a campaign of work and education which will have a salutary effect.

AGITATION IN MILWAUKEE OVER LIQUOR LICENSES
(Evening Wisconsin.)
Ald. John Koerher's ordinance to end brewery control is clearly illegal, according to an opinion from Eugene L. McIntyre, special assistant city attorney. Mr. McIntyre says: "It is illegal, because the common council has no authority to enact this ordinance, because the legislature has provided in a law how applications for liquor licenses shall be made, and the common council can pass no ordinance that conflicts with the state law. The ordinance attempts to impose certain conditions which must be complied with by persons making application for licenses to keep saloons. There is no authority in the council to grant licenses except in the manner provided for granting licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors."

It is believed in the city hall that at Monday's adjourned council session the aldermen will grant licenses to the 266 saloons under dispute, but the aldermen under dispute refuse to decide the fact that the legislature has no authority to grant licenses except in the manner provided for granting licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors.

MADISON STILL HOLDS TO SUNDAY BASEBALL
The scare that threatened to put Sunday baseball in the discard is believed to have passed over, and no opposition is expected from any quarter when Sunday games are played at League park the remainder of the season.

The officials are known to be in favor of the Sunday pastime and they the sworn statement of a citizen that the playing of a game is a nuisance to him can cause an investigation. At the time of the closing up of the saloons and pool and billiard halls several enemies of Sunday baseball asked that the games be forced to discontinue in the future but the officials refused to countenance the request unless the objectors would swear the game was a public nuisance. District Attorney Nelson followed a precedent established by the late Judge Donovan of municipal court in handling all the objectors. Madison Journal.

MILWAUKEE POLICE CHIEF DISCUSSES SLIT SKIRT
So far as Police Chief John T. Jansen is concerned there will be no more slit skirts in Milwaukee. The women who wear skirts slit to the knee, and those who parade the downtown streets in other more or less negligible apparel.

"It is all a matter of opinion," said the chief yesterday, when told that certain women have been seen on Grand avenue, in attire exposing much silk hosiery.

"If it is a question of public sentiment, if the public wants those slit gowns, the wearers will not be molested. If the majority of the people show that they want the wearing of their new fashions regulated, why guess the law concerning indecent exposure of persons could be interpreted to cover the case."

MERCHANTS CONTRIBUTE TOWARD MACADAM ROAD
A macadam road one-half mile in length will be built through the village of Rosendale, Wis., from the Hotel Young past the Northwestern depot, within a short time. The merchants of the village have subscribed $700 toward paying for the improvement. Additional amounts have been raised through county and town appropriations. The state-highway commission will superintend the construction of the highway and will furnish part of the funds necessary for the building of the road. The total cost will be about $4,200.

CONCRETE FOR PAVING TESTED IN EAU CLAIRE
"Concrete roads for Eau Claire" is the latest slogan to be adopted by those who wish the "first commission city in Wisconsin" to be well up in the vanguard of state municipalities in all matters of public weal and improvements.

After investigating the proposition thoroughly the administration is convinced that there are great possibilities in concrete for paving purposes, and in response to requests in the Third Ward which specified concrete as the paving material preferred, the council have finally decided to try it out on two short stretches—Bau Claire Leader.

Get Drinking Fountain
The campaign for a drinking fountain in the heart of the Rockford business district on the west side of the river has borne fruit, a start having been made on the installation of a fountain on the Wyman street side of the waiting room of the street railway company.

With An Electric Flat Iron
You Can Work In Comfort

THE year round comfort and convenience of an Electric Flat Iron is most appreciated in summer. If you already enjoy the benefits of Electric Light in your home, why let another ironing day pass without an Electric Flat Iron? Think of having the whole week's ironing done in perfect comfort—no matter how fagging the heat—for just a few cents without any of the work and worry of the old way. With an Electric Flat Iron, the ironing may be done out on the porch or in any cool spot about the house—wherever there is Electric Light. The clothes are ironed better—no scorching or sticking. The ironing surface is always hot but the handle is always cool.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS.—But look at the Fun they'll have after they get there.—

By F. LEIPZIGER

"Will—Will You Marry Me?" He blurted.

"Ah!"

"I'm sorry it makes you wince. But it's the truth. And the truth is generally painful. When you wanted to marry me, I felt as though a demigod had stooped to earth. That isn't the way to feel when one marries. I didn't know it then. I do, now. And perhaps the knowledge that I would not be allowed to marry you just yet, or even acknowledge our engagement, helped strengthen the infatuation. Then when I found I must go to Europe so soon, and you begged me to give you just this one 'perfect week,' it all seemed so natural—so right—so beautiful—"

"I was wrong!" he cried. "I was insane. I had no right to suggest it. I had no right to let you consent."

But, womanlike, she would not let him blame himself.

"It was not your fault," she cried. "Or if there were fault at all it was mine as much as yours. I say you 'begged' me to come here. You did not. At your first hint I was as eager as you. Perhaps," she added with a return of her forced hardness, "it was not quite the way one would expect a Calahad or a Quixote to spend a week. But the blame is as much mine as yours. So don't let's talk of that. Can't we both forget it?"

"Forget it? Why, girl, it's my whole life."

"It is an episode whose memory can be sweet or bitter as we choose to make it. We were clever enough to leave no trace when we went away. I'm supposed to be on a visit and your worthy constituents were told that their congressional representative was going away to recuperate, somewhere in the mountains. You will return from your vacation much benefited—if a little vague as to its details. And I will go back to my aunt's tonight, prepared to start happily on my European trip tomorrow morning. That is all."

"Oh, girl, I love you! You are mad—insane—to talk this way—to plan what you are planning. Can't you see it? Won't you give me a chance to get back your love? I had it once—I can get it again if you will give me the chance. I know I can make you happy."

A smile that savored of the rack twisted her set lips—and died before it reached her eyes.

"No, dear," she contradicted gently. "You can't make me happy. I doubt if you can make any woman happy. A woman—one who didn't know the un-Galahad side of you as I do—might respect or even reverence you. But you couldn't hold her love. No woman ever really loved a man because he was good; or because he fought against political evils or slew dragons. She might admire him for it. But admiration and reverence are petty poor everyday fare. When your wife wanted you to say crazy adoring things to her, you would be thinking out a new insurgent plan by which you could block the machine in congress. When she hoped you'd buy her some candy or a few flowers on your way home from the Capitol, you'd be too busy framing your next speech to think of such trifles. Those same trifles and his wild extravagance of praise and the quick noticing of anything she puts on to please him, are the cords that lash a woman's heart to a man's. Not her pride in the way he is fighting his country's political battles."

"Listen!" pleaded Standish. "I'll give it all up; my seat in congress, my fight for the people, my political hopes—everything! I'll give it all up—all—if you will marry me and give me a chance to make you love me again."

"It's no use," she returned. "For the moment you almost carried me off my feet. I can understand now why your speeches that read so stupidly, can sway people. But it's only an impulse. Inside of an hour you would question it. Inside of a day you would regret it."

"No! No!"

"And inside of a week you would be secretly reading every scrap of congressional news and cursing your lot at being out of the fight. It would be like all sacrifices. In time one gets to hating the person one made them for. Oh, it would be misery for us both! It would be even worse than this week."

"Today there seems much I don't understand," he retorted. "But one thing is very clear to me: the course you've chosen is an impossible one for you. You must marry me. If not for love, then because it is the right thing to do. I do not ask you to care for me or even to live in the same house with me. But for your own sake you must—"

"It is for my own sake that I must do nothing of the sort. You get your ideas of life from books. Too many people do that. I am not going to let this one mistake ruin every bit of my future. I won't let one moment of folly blot all my life. Men don't. Why should women? There is still much in the world for me. And for you, too, if you'll look at it sanely. Oh, I know my kind of sanity shocks you. But it is sanity. You are held back by centuries of traditions. Your father began life as a millionaire's son. Mine began it in an Irish orphanage. Your grandfather was a supreme court judge. I don't know who mine was. There must be something, after all, in this talk of heredity. For instance, I don't suppose there's a girl in all your sisters' set who would have consent to a 'honeymoon' like ours—is there? Your sisters wouldn't have done such a thing, would they?"

"I Don't Love You."

"No!" he exclaimed in involuntary disgust.

At his word and tone a faint red showed across the woman's face as if he had struck her lightly with his open hand. But at once she recovered herself.

"Let's say goodbye and part as friends," she suggested. "No irreparable harm is done. Except for myself, you are the only person hurt. You'll have to stand that as part of the price of—"

"You are mistaken," he broke in. "Others, besides myself, are affected."

"Who?"

"I don't know. But this I do know: No one can live to himself or herself. No one can say: 'My fault or folly hurts me alone.' In this miserable old world of ours, we are all tangled up in one another's destinies. And when one tears loose the cord that binds him, the vibration of that wrench will soon or late reach and affect people whom he perhaps does not even know."

"The cord you speak of," she mocked, "is that holy bond known as Conventionalty, isn't it? The bugbear that the weak and the prim have raised to scare the strong and the courageous."

"No. The beaten path that ten billion failures and tragedies since the birth of Time have shown to be the only safe one. Conventionalty's path may seem to the near-sighted to be twisted foolishly, and unnecessarily long. But each of those twists represents the place where the Man in Front wisely stopped aside to avoid the pitfall into which the man ahead of him had tumbled. And the short cuts in the long tortuous road are white with the bones of failures."

"I'm going to walk over those same whitened bones in my short cut from one point of Conventionalty's twisted path to another. I'm going to walk back from a union that would mean misery to me—back to the pleasant home life and social life I love and don't mean to lose. Don't worry. No whitened bones will turn under me and bring me a fall. I can defy the boggy, Conventionalty, and still live happy."

"Others have defied the boggy. You are not the first nor the millionth. To most of them it seemed as safe as it seems to you."

"Yes? I should like to meet them and compare notes."

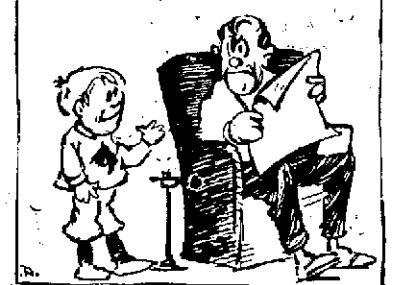

"You will not meet them," he answered grimly, "but you will tread on their bones—in the short cut. Even as some future challenger of Conventionalty shall one day tread on yours."

Dinner Stories

"Say, pa," Johnny asked—and it was his thirty-seventh query—"is there two sides to every question?"

"There is," replied the long-suffering parent, as he suddenly yanked the youngster across his knees and began to apply his slipper, "and this is the other side."

At a banquet recently William F. McCombs told of a conversation in a club in which several philanthropic personages were mentioned and lauded to the skies. The conversation had gone to some length, Mr. McCombs said, when a man who was sitting in a corner arose with a merry smile flitting over his features and broke in on the gabfest.

"Your philanthropists are all right," he remarked, "but I think it is only just that my next door neighbor should be included in the kindly disposed bunch."

"We are willing to add him to the list," responded one of the others, "but is he really so generously inclined?"

"Well, I should say that he is," was the emphatic declaration of the first. Dozens of tramps hammer at his back door and I have never known him to send one away empty-handed."

"You don't mean it?" returned the second a trifle incredulously.

"That's right," rejoined the first; "he always gives them a letter of introduction to me."

Hecker (to orator)—Hi! guv'nor, do you support early closing?

Orator—Certainly I do, friend.

Hecker—Then shut up.

The WOMAN

A Novel by Albert Payson Terhune

founded on William C. de Mille's Play

Illustrated with Photos from the Play and Drawings by V.L. Barnes

CHAPTER I.

Five Years Before.

The Woman looked up from her task of fitting the trunk tray into exact position. Standish noted vaguely that the effort of packing had not made her red or frowzy. Even as she sat there on the floor beside the nearly-full trunk, with a litter of garments about her, her pose was oddly tense, and her clenched hands spoke of self-control hard to maintain.

"No," she said patiently, as though trying to teach a lesson to some rather stupid child, "that isn't what I mean, at all. I mean, it's over. Can't you understand?"

"Why, yes," answered Standish, "of course I understand. Why shouldn't it? It's over. You will be safe at your aunt's house by six o'clock this evening, and you will start for Europe tomorrow, just as you arranged. And our wonder-week is ended. And for the next three months I'll be counting every—"

"Oh!" interrupted the Woman, her hard-worn patience going to pieces. "Won't you understand? I said it was over. Over! Not for three months or for any other time. But for always. Why do you make me put it this way? I tried to say it more—"

"You don't mean"—he began thickly, his throat sanding and sore.

The Woman nodded.

"But," he protested lamely, "it—can't be. Why, girl, you love me!"

"I thought I did. Oh, I was so sure I did! But little by little, for days, I've begun to understand. Don't look at me like that! Do you suppose I enjoy talking so? It has to be said. And you're not making it a bit easy for me."

"Forgive me," he answered, a bitter note creeping into his heavy voice. "You are wrecking me. You are smashing all I hold dear. You are making my future as barren as a rainy sea. Forgive me for not making the process a bit easy for you."

"You have no right to say such things!" she flared. "It is cowardly. It is ungenerous."

"Why? Because you are a woman? A woman may flay a man. She may break his life to pieces for her own amusement. If he dares to protest, he is cowardly and ungenerous. Because she is a woman. A man's hands are tied behind him by that asinine old tradition. How about the woman who pommels a man when she knows his hands are so tied? Isn't she as 'cowardly' and 'ungenerous' as I would be if I thrashed a cripple? And yet women clamor for their 'rights'—Rights! With one-tenth of the 'rights' that silly chivalry showers upon women, I could conquer the whole world!"

"But you could not conquer one woman. If I begged you to avoid a scene it was as much for your own sake as for mine. Since you will have one, let's get it over with as quickly as possible. The situation in a handful of words: I met you. You weren't like any other man I'd ever known. You didn't fall down and worship me at sight—or pretend to, which comes to the same thing. It didn't seem to interest you that I had money and that other men made fools of themselves over me. And then your Quixotic ideas about politics and government and all that sort of thing, appealed to me. These and other reasons of the same kind made me think I was in love with you."

"You didn't think. You were! And—"

"Perhaps. Perhaps not. Does it matter—now? Isn't that also an effort to save the anchor after the wreck? But never mind. I thought I loved you. With your impractical high-souled ideas about political reform and the people's wrongs you seemed to me a modern Calahad; instead of just a—Don Quixote."

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, July 26, 1873.—Stole Watch: A few days ago a wandering thief entered the residence of John Clark and took therefrom an open faced silver watch. Afterwards the watch was left at Webb and Hall's jewelry store for repairs by a man from the country who had bought it from the thief. With the knowledge of these facts an officer of the law went and took charge of the property in question and yesterday succeeded in capturing the guilty party on his way to Beloit, via the overland route. This morning the thief gave his name as Francis Buck, pleaded guilty before Justice Smith and was sentenced to fifteen days in the county jail. For some time in the past Marshal Crotonburg has been engaged in looking out the transactions of a class of our citizens who were suspected of trafficking in liquor without the required license from the city council. His investigations lead him to bring charges against Jacob Rubin, C. C. Fritz and John Dunn and during the past week charges have been filed against all of them and Fritz has been tried before Police Justice Smith. They were found guilty of the charge and each sentenced to a fine of twenty-five dollars and costs or take ten days' imprisonment in the county jail. From this decision they have taken an appeal to the circuit court, where their case will probably be tried at the fall term. John Dunn's trial comes before Justice Smith's Court. The long looked for combination of an excellent street parade about half past ten o'clock. Their display of animals and curiosities and their ring performance this afternoon led us to believe that all they claim of the excellence of the show is true.
